and his popularity in the provinces which he has visited eclipses that of all former Presidents of this Repub. In Rosario, in Cordoba, and in S. Luis, the people turned out to a man to greet the arrival of the Chief Magistrate of the country. This popularity is enhanced by the fact that it springs from a conviction that the process of the respective provinces depend on the progressive policy of the National Government. President Roca could view these popular receptions in no other light, and should endeavor to push ahead the fortunes of the Interior by a more liberal policy, fomenting industry, and facilitating the advance of capital.

President Roca's trip, we are sorry to say, was not lengthy enough to allow him to direct his steps to the South and North of the country. His Minister of the Interior limited also his sojourn to a visit through the colonies of Santa Fe. Meantime, both in the North and South, the eagle eye of the President and Minister is much needed to obliterate many deficiencies and to remove many defects, which spring

Bahia Blnca is progressing in such an astonding ratio as to stagger even optimist observers of the progress of the Republic. The placid waters of the bay reflect the shadows of large English vessels and steamers with cargoes of railway materials for the Southern Railway Company.

The gaze of the Argentine statesman should be directed to this embryo Liverpool; everything in the South is primitive, the hand of the Government is required to lend fresh activity to industry and sheep-farming. Everything is growing in the South, and the growth may assume immense proportions if both National and Provincial Governments unite to push things ahead. The political men of this country have constantly displayed a most deplorable lack of foresight, much attention having been paid to political intrigues and manœuvres, requires little intuition to foresee that a liberal policy and energetic enterprise can produce in the South. Let the Government watch the progress of the moment and study the

at the cause of all this monstrous early sing is the Recado. The plain fact the matter is, the gaucho has no bed sleep on, the 'recado' being a sham, a excuse for a bed, and as hard and comfortless as the cold ground, which the chief lodging of those remarkbly early risers. Only people entirely ignorant of native life in the camp will attribute to energy and industry his habit of early rising. Some of the laziest asses and most worthless peones has ever been my lot to see or know, were far earlier risers than Dom Pedro himself, the Emperor of Brazil. In Normandy, and in some parts of Ireland, the peasants are very early; I have seen the women working in the fields between Rouen and Havre at break of day, but you seldom see a gaucho, early riser though he be, doing anything before the break of day, save taking 'maté'. Custom may possibly have something to do with his early rising, but I believe, the want of a comfortable bed is at the bottom of it all, and the 'recado', if the parent of this early rising virtue, is also responsible for many of those great checks which leave the gaucho where he is to-day.

The debt of the Argentine Republic would be less, and its productions more, if the people in the camp slept on beds instead of 'recados.' Vagrancy, with all its corroding associates, becomes, as it were, identified with a people without beds. Whatever is good in the gaucho is neutralized by this houseless national custom of sleeping, and Mr. Sarmiento, when he fathered upon the horse all the troubles of the country, would have escaped censure and hit the nail on the head, had he stigmatized the 'recado,' as the true source and origin of all our camp shortcomings.

Down away in the far South one sees more of this stupid 'recadoism' than elsewhere. Even in the very town of Patagones you find half the people sleeping upon their 'recados'; the gaucho down there, whether peon or estanciero, boasts of being able to sleep anywhere in the camp on his 'recado,' and I do verily believe they despise those who look for a 'catre' or anything in the shape of a bed, in preference to the wretched 'recado.' Had all the people beds, they must necessarily have houses or 'ranches' wherein to put them; the bed brings with it a certain degree of civilizing comfort, whilst the 'recado' makes Indians of us all. Without house, home, or bed, I have seen men with good 'tropillas' of horses, and money in their 'tiradores,' pass from estancia to estancia, either looking for, or to escape work. These people, had they been properly trained, might have proved useful and industrious; to-day they are not only a dangerous element, but so unsusceptible of reform that the vagrancy of their habits tells on the rising generation; and if in the most civilized countries statesmen have found its imperative to order compulsory education, here in the Plate we shall never reach our proper status until Congress passes a law compelling the people to sleep on beds, and abandon the 'recado.' It is all nonsense to say that custom has for the gaucho turned the hard 'recado' into a bed of down. The truth is, he knows no better; bred from the cradle to the horse's back, he never in all his life knew the comforts of a good bed: tired and done up after his day's labor he throws himself on his 'recado,' and when the first few hours of sleep remove exhaustion, he is up before the birds, in order to escape from so rude and comfortless a couch. To attribute to these people any merit for their early rising habits, would be as great a blunder as to overlook the national defects which this 'recado' produces.

Whatever merits a 'recado' may have as horse gear, they are more than out-balanced by its defects as a bed, and were it possible to abolish the 'recado' in toto, the gain to the people would be immense. In other countries where they do just as much hard work on horseback as in this, the 'recado' is unknown, and it must also be borne in mind that the very labor in the camp in which the 'recado' plays such a principal part, is a lazy slovenly labor that in other countries where the people sleep in comfortable beds is much better performed by other and better means. Had we no 'recados' in the camp, it would not require 4 peones, 4 horses, 4 lassos and 4 recados to 'carnear' a novillo on an estancia; the 'lasso' and the 'recado' may have been all very good in their day, but they are terrible checks to camp progress and camp civilization. Not under the sun is there to be found a more barbarous system of marking cattle and mares than by the 'lasso' and 'encierra;' both animals and men resist improvement under so rude a system, and I have noted it in my travels that wherever, at an estancia or puesto, the 'lasso' and 'recado' are in the ascendant, the comfort, cleanliness and thriftiness are at a discount; where the 'recado' is the bed, there are no chairs, no plates or spoons or cups, no comforts of any description; on the other hand, in the humblest rancho where you find a clean decent bed, there you will also find thrift and social comfort, if even on the most limited scale. It needs to travel in the very far South to see today the gaucho in his true element. I profess to have had my share of this class of South American experience, to have visited places where it was a question whether the animals or the men were the tamer; I have seen 'rodeos' of little children as wild as the 'rodeos' of cows, and all this wild savage misery springs from the want of those humanizing social comforts which, no matter where, help man to raise his head over the mother earth. Could we but give to every gaucho in the camp a good decent bed to sleep on, how soon would not all this camp savagery disappear, the poor beggar instead of rising in the middle of the night would sleep at least till sunrise, and get up refreshed by natur's soft nurse, ready to do what none of them ever yet did, a good day's work. The Indians in the South have the custom of burning the 'recado' of an Indian when he is buried; we might without much risk adopt this Indian custom, which with the aid of a good patente tax on every one who uses a 'recado' for a bed might eventually rid us of the nuisance; for I have marked on my tablets one very notable fact, that however useful and essential to present camp life a 'recado' may be, and how, although every native in the South, poor or rich, has one, yet no man was ever yet known to own two 'recados,' which proves that lazy necessity has given to this article of camp life its present obsolete utility.

SAND BANKS IN THE PARANA.

The information you give your readers, founded on the opinion of a transitory sojourner in Rosario, that the River Parana is filling up in front of this city, and that shortly the port of Rosario, the finest one on the river, will be a thing of the past, will be startling news to ship-owners. I consequently feel myself called on to make a few observations on the subject, and describe the topography of the river at this point, by which I think I shall be able to prove that the fears you express in your editorial are unfounded.

The River Parana in this latitude is about thirty miles across from the terra firma of Santa Fe to Entre Rios. The principal channel, however, of the river is in front of Rosario, and is about a mile and a half wide; the rest of the thirty miles is composed of innumerable islands and low marshy lands with shallow channels continually changing. It is only in high floods that coasting vessels can venture into these devious channels.

The principal current, and consequently the greatest body of water, rushes past Rosario, with the result of forming a deep channel and a large and commodious port. In fact, such is the force of the water, that it is attacking in some places the high barrancas. The Central Argentine Station has already lost some of its land by the caving in of the barranca. It is foolish, therefore, talking of the river filling up. The immense body of water must always make for itself an outlet. The enormous quantity of sediment suspended in the water will be continually forming sand banks, but the river will scour out a deep channel all the same. The branches of the Parana known as the Guazu and the Palma, have formed the great delta of islands with a base of upwards of ten leagues in breadth; but both these branches are kept thoroughly scoured by the current that carries through them the principal body of the river. So it is with the channel in front of Rosario. It must scour itself out a wide and deep passage, unless indeed the river should take it into its head to break a passage through the archipelago of the islands to the western side until it reaches the Plate, throwing off however a huge bulk of its dirty waters into the Guazu branch, and into the bright clear Uruguay, much to the disgust, no doubt, of the latter.

It is true that to a stranger the appearance of the upper part of the port of Rosario is threatening. Huge sand banks are protruding down the river, and really look as if they were about to enclose us in. They rise up within a few hundred yards in front of the railway wharf. Your informer, however, did not tell you that the river is some fifteen feet below its normal stage. The bulk of water is comparatively small and the current weak. Sand is piled up and there is not sufficient force or pressure to carry it off, as the current is satisfied to move in a sluggish manner and in a comparatively narrow channel. But even now were you to get into a boat and pull up the river in front of Rosario, you would find a current that would convince you that no sandbank could secure a footing there. Just wait for a little while and when the river rises you will find that the flood will carry off these impertinent deposits and whirl them into the River Plate, probably to add another mile to the expanse of sand that separates B. Ayres from her port, while that of Rosario will be as large, as deep and as commodious as ever.

The fate of the port of Buenos Ayres is no precedent in this case. The waters of the two great rivers tumble into a vast estuary. The circumstance of a large portion of the Parana being diverted into the Uruguay and both falling into the Plate on the northern side, determined the principal channel there, leaving Buenos Ayres out in the cold. But here it is different; the channel of the river is in front of Rosario; and, when we consider it is the channel of one of the greatest rivers in the world, it is not a few temporary sand banks, creations of an exceptionally low water tide, that will stop its majestic career.

NAHUEL HUAPI EXPEDITION.

LATEST ADVICES.

LIEUTENANT SHARPLES DROWNED.

We have received the following despatch from Mr. J. L. Williams Andrews, of London, who, in the true Sir Walter Raleigh spirit of adventure, accompanies General Villegas's expedition to Nahuel Huapi, with intention to cross over from thence to Chile:—

"North Bank of Coyoneura, or Catopuliche,
Dec. 10, 1882.

"Dear Standard,

"I trust you duly received my last from Roca. With me time has passed but roughly since I saw thee last. At the confluence of the rivers Limay and Nauquen, two Indians and a soldier of the General's escort deserted one night. The two Indians were looking after my horses, and I saw two duly tied. Vain foresight! In the morning I was afoot. The cursed fools never told me till the following day. When I enquired they lied and said the horses had wandered in the night, and the men were out 'campearing' them; thus, when I came to learn the stern reality, pursuit was out of the question. I was so enraged that when everyone expected me to turn back, I was the more determined to go on.

"Bronsted is a very good fellow, but weak and helpless in an emergency; so behold me poor me mounted on a patria mule! I felt as if I was a pack saddle, and so continued the journey from Nov. 21st to Dec. 6th, and all this the result of listening to friends' advice, who said it was absolutely necessary to stick to some chum. The contrary is the fact; the most independent are those who farebest.

"To-day we ought to have crossed the river and joined Falcon, but it is blowing a gale, so he has gone without us. God alone knows when we shall reach the Lago. As a general description of the journey is being prepare I for you. I will not inflict too much on you now, but merely give you the latest items at the General's headquarters.

"In attempting to pass this river, which is 1½ square wide, an alferez (Sharples), a sergeant (Ferreira) a cabo, five soldiers of the 6th Battalion together with two soldiers of the 7th Regiment were swept away and drowned. On the banks of the Chimepain some hundred lances (Indians) of Nancucheo fell upon and surprised a party of 25 soldiers under Captain Bustos. Result: 2 soldiers killed and 4 badly wounded, Bustos himself getting two ugly pokes with a lance, but in return they completely 'did for' the 'copper-coloureds,' slaying 13, and the rest taking to the water, where, it is said, many were drowned. Net gain: They sacked the 'tolderia' and carried off some 20 to 30 'chusma,' 75 'lecheras,' 300 sheep and 30 horses. Of those latter animals I hope to get a share.

"The camps on this river are decidedly good; the Pampa itself, being the least part, is of narrow extent and the soil is everywhere sandy. In some places there are great barren stretches of pebbles, but the 'cuchilla' (mountain) is broken up by many little 'cañados,' and everywhere amongst the mountains are small valleys affording excellent pasture, and nearly everyone has a tiny stream running down its centre. However, for years to come it can be of no use, as there is no possibility of any kind of vehicle passing the road as at present known, and all around is a perfect nest of 'tolderias.' The classes of pasture most abundant are 'trevol de olor,' 'cebadilla,' 'alfelerilla,' 'cola de zoro,' 'lengua de vaca,' and some other soft pastures that do not exist below—all grow in great luxuriance, reaching above your horse's knees and up to the mule's shoulders. Snow mountains distant some ten leagues.

"News came in to-night that a 'baqueano,' Francisco Pancho, who was captured near Castro about a year ago, has betrayed three soldiers to his compatriots and decamped. For certain, three bodies with throats cut were found, but F. P. is not to be seen.

"It is awfully cold here to-day; about 42 Farht. and a gale from the Cordilleras. Two days ago we had 80 in the shade.

"Yours,
"Lincoln's Inn."

"OUR BOCA CORRESPONDENT IN MONTEVIDEO."

Montevideo, at the present season, offers great attraction to its visitors, principally on account of the splendid bathing to be enjoyed in its environs. Crowds of Porteños and foreigners are to be met with at every turn, and the otherwise silent streets have a true holiday aspect. The proper thing to do is to turn in to your "doway" about 9 p.m., and then up in the morning at 5 and off to the Pocitos or Playa Ramirez for a header. This is the ordeal "High Life" in Montevideo goes through. The Pocitos "casillas" are shaped in the form of a horseshoe, and are most commodious. Towels and other necessaries can be obtained on the premises at a very low rate, but I should advise intending visitors to take their own bathing materials along with them, as, owing to the great rush of people, towels of a very damp description are often obtainable, which, to say the least, is not over pleasant. "Oh! ye gods." I can imagine myself now on that springboard, running full belter to take, oh! such too delicious headers into the brine. For the insignificant item of 85 cts. you go through the bathing routine, tram, casilla, gymnastics and shower-bath after your dip.

The restaurant is always crowded, and must really be doing a roaring business. Quadrupeds, in the shape of cows, are on the spot, so that a most enjoyable glass of fresh milk (with or without a stick in it) can be obtained to refresh the inner man. The only drawback to the Pocitos is the big rush of people, which makes waiting for a "casilla" quite a tedious job. For my part I prefer the Playa Ramirez, which is well frequented, but not to such an extent as the Pocitos, and where a most enjoyable bath can be had, everything included, for 16 cts. If you prefer it, you can arrange for taking one of the bathing-machines, which are constructed on the home principle, and are largely patronised. The tramway accommodation to the Playa is very good. You have two companies, one the Oriental, which starts from the Custom House Mole, and the other the Este, which starts from the old market, turning into Calles Sarandi and Soriano, and so on to the baths. The sight of the Playa Ramirez, as you descend the hill to the bay, is most imposing. Overlooking the bay you notice the fine church of the Capuchins. On the right, you have the splendid edifice under construction for the College of Arts and Sciences; whilst on your left, on a slight eminence, you notice a princely establishment, denominated "Asilo de Huérfanos." Down below you see the machines and bathing establishments, and very often a picturesque-looking fishing-boat, with its lateen sail, lazily lying at anchor. Not being an artist, I was unable to do anything with the brush and palette, so dear Standard kindly look over any imperfections.

I shall ever look back gratefully to one particular bath I took one stormy morning at the Playa Ramirez. The waves were running mountains high reminding one of regular Atlantic billows, and the hissing and seething was something too grand to depict. What a delicious feeling when one of these monsters of the deep rears its crested head and comes tumbling in masses of spray and foam over your shoulders. Readers, I am not saying all this to tantalize you; this is no idle fiction, no sudden dash of the pen, but the solid truth. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," so I should strongly advise those who can afford it to go and judge for themselves, if there is any exaggeration on my part as regards the pleasures of sea-bathing at the Mount. There is still another little "endroit" for bathing, and not at all to be despised, within easy access of the centre of the town, and crowded from morning to night by those who cannot afford to lose too much time by going to the more fashionable resorts—this is in the Calle Cerro, where a most commodious establishment, regardless of expense, has been fitted up. Anybody knowing how to swim would do well to look this place up, as a most beautiful swim can be obtained.

Having now exhausted the bathing topic, let us turn our attention in a different direction. I was much amused in some of my peregrinations to notice the oddity of some of the sign-boards exposed to view. One, in the Calle Piedras, reads thus, "Casa de Comida Humanitario," another, "Almacen del Basco Capador," a third, "Casa de Avisos," but the fourth topped them all, announcing in flaming letters the following—"Sastreria y Roperia, el Yankee," and underneath, "Go-ha-head." The owner of this important establishment was blandly and smirkingly standing at the door, in a wash-stand kind of manner, as I passed, and I must own my risible faculties were tried to the uttermost. Poor man, he evidently imagined he had done a big move, and that his modest little inscription was "never so nice."

On Sunday morning, the 24th, the annual "Fiestas Euskaras" were inaugurated, and took place in a most splendid quinta, near "Passo Molino." The rendezvouz was crowded, and wealth and fashion put in an appearance about 4 p.m. The public in general seem to have enjoyed themselves amazingly in the beautiful grounds. Dancing and singing were carried on with spirit till the small hours, and pretty skiffs were incessantly gliding about, under the shade of the weeping willows. Bull-fighting is in full away, but owing to not being a lover of that particularly cruel pastime, I did not put in an appearance. "The American Transit of Venus Society" arrived back, per Brooklyn. The observations taken could not have been better. The number of photographs amount to 224.

By the bye, for strangers to Montevideo, who wish to do the thing as economically as possible, I strongly recommend the "Hotel de la Bella Barcelona," situated in the Calle Cindadela, Nos. 101, 103, 105, half a square from the Plaza Independencia. The "cuisine" is very good, and everything is cooked according to the taste of the "interesados." Montevideo to say the least of it, is decidedly gay at present. The tram cars on a Sunday to the Passo Molino, Reducto, Cerro, Cerrito and Union, are always crowded with pleasure-seekers. The tramways are very well organised in the Mount. Owing to the wideness of the streets sidings are placed at frequent intervals, so that the cars go and come on the same route. The lines are very well laid down, and an off the track is a very uncommon occurrence. The shops in the 25 de Mayo, Plaza Matriz and 18 de Julio, were most tastefully arranged for Christmas, and those who had any spare cash had quite a choice. The quintas on the outskirts were looking most beautiful, and it was really delightful to saunter about them at sundown and inhale the sweet perfume of innumerable flowers. How charming to be away from the busy hum of a large city for a brief space, alone with your own thoughts, drinking in the delicious nectar of that thrilling stillness, and forgetting for a moment the cares and trials of this sinful world, in a rapturous ecstacy.

The gossips have been busy here with the tragic end of the Spanish doctor, who a few days ago was shot dead by a guard on the Tramway del Este. It seems, from what I can glean, that the said doctor was making himself too officious, and accused the guard of collecting from people without duly giving them a ticket. The doctor applied some opprobrious epithets to him and reported the man at the tramway station. On pleading explanation he was again loaded with hard words which his dignity could not suffer and he was heard to say, when he went in for his revolver, that he would sooner suffer the Penitentiary than be falsely accused. With this resolve he came out and deliberately shot the doctor in the back. The unfortunate man has, I hear, since succumbed, and the aggressor is suffering for his imprudence in the Penitentiary.

Query—Will this murderer be shot?

Yours,
"A Wanderer in foreign parts."

OUR SUGAR INTEREST.

Tucuman, Dec. 23rd, 1882

To the Editor of the Standard,

Sir

In reply to a query of 'Old Planter,' and a note in your Editor's Table of 14th inst. just to hand, allow me to give you the following information about sugar planting and sugar and spirit manufacturing here; having seen that you take much interest in this new industry.

Firstly about the three thousand squares of the new manufactory of Messrs Schaefer & Meyer, in Santiago del Estero, an estate entirely unknown here, and about their machinery, working in 40 days the sugar cane produced on 200 squares; equal to 30,000 arrobas per day; machinery also unknown till now; even the directors of Five Lille themselves, will be rather astonished by learning it. The whole steals to me to be a la lark. Santiago is not the place for sugar planting, for the following reasons:—

I.—There, in Tucuman one square is calculated to give about 10,000 arrobas of cane, which, rendering 6 per cent, gives for 3000 squares not less than one million eight hundred thousand arrobas of sugar; and in the whole province you will not find half this number of squares planted with cane, much less in Santiago, and the best of all, in one single establishment as mentioned by you. In Santiago the soil renders about 50 per cent of here.

There, the soil all over is impregnated with saltpetre, the cane grows badly; in the middle of a square planted with cane you will find none, the saltpetre not allowing the cane to grow; so that, here in Tucuman, where we have no saltpetre but a splendid soil, 1 square gives about 10,000 arrobas; in Santiago it does not give 5000, and I speak on the authority of parties that have much experience in both provinces. Moreover, the cane of Santiago never will give the percentage of sugar produced here; at most, it yields 4 to 4½ per cent; here, in good years, we have 6½ to 6¾ and 7 per cent.

II.—Irrigation, chief matter for the planting of canes. The whole province of Santiago counts but one single river, passing near the city, whose water is used for irrigation. This river comes from the high mountains of Tucuman and is the confluence of the 18 to 20 rios and arroyos of our province, that take their course through the province of Santiago in one single channel.

Now, as the planting of cane has gone ahead on an enormous scale, and is increasing daily, here in this province, (next year, there will be nine new sugar mills and 3 or 4 of the existing ones will double their machinery) the very development of this industry here is a danger for Santiago, respecting water supply.

Here each sugar planter and each mill has small water channels, many or few, according to what he wants, and in the way our plantations increase the water is used up here and the supply for Santiago diminishes, chiefly in certain months. In September and October there was not a single drop of water in the rio in Santiago.

III.—An another reason, why in Santiago the plantation of cane cannot go fast ahead, is the condition of the territory, quite irrespective of its saltpetre. The whole province, with few exceptions, is as flat as the camp in Buenos Aires and the earth as soft as there, so that to maintain their water channels, they must support the sides with pile work, costing much money.

Thus, the territory being so flat, in Santiago the water runs very slowly, whilst here in Tucuman 100 squares planted with cane might be easily irrigated in 3 or 4 days; there it would require at least 2 weeks, a difference, that in a hot climate like this makes also an enormous difference in the quantity of cane. A lot of other reasons might be added as proofs that Santiago cannot be considered a rival to Tucuman for sugar planting and never will nor can possess an establishment with 3000 squares.

Now for the query of "Old Planter."

The more or less quantity of spirit produced from the molasses, the rest out of the canes worthless for sugar manufacturing is due either to the machinery used or to the soil on which the cane is planted.

What kind of machinery is used in Jamaica, I do not know if there more spirit resp. more molasses is produced, it seems to me that they work there still on the old system, not with the machinery of recent invention, as used in Europe and here, making the concentration of the juice per vacuum and by steam, instead of open boilers and by direct fire as formerly done here also. To show you the enormous difference between the new and old system, I refer to what happened here now about 5 years ago.

Formerly every small sugar planter had also his own mill and distillery, producing about 1½ to 2 per cent of sugar, the rest being molasses, and of course the quantity of spirit produced was enormous, due to the imperfect way of boiling the juice in open kettles and by direct fire, half of the juice so being burned and rendered useless for sugar. It was considered a relief and a lie in the whole province where it was told, that the new machinery brought up here by Mr Chrisostomo Mendez for his establishment, "La Concepcion" and 'a tempo' by his brother Don Manuel Mendez for "La Trinidad," produced 6 per cent of sugar instead of 1½ to 2 per cent as in the former way. Nobody would believe it, in spite of these gentlemen allowing everybody to inspect their machinery and giving every information and advice; it was only when the first season was over and the quantity of cane worked was compared with the quantity of sugar produced that the fact was believed.

Since that time, about five years ago, the new system of machinery has been introduced in almost every mill, and, of course, as the quantity of sugar produced is augmenting, the quantity of molasses for spirit diminishes.

The first machinery of the new systems was from England, and Messrs Fawcett Preston and Co of Liverpool, whose agent here had the honour to be the first that brought out this new kind of machines; and had it not been for the fatal imprudent first contracts he made, I can assure you, gentlemen, that the greatest part of the new machinery now here would be English, instead of French and German as it is.

The soil where the cane is planted also contributes much to the more or less quantity of sugar or spirit produced, as already mentioned.

If the cane is rich in 'Sacarina' that is crystallizable, it produces more sugar, the rest of the juice not crystalisable gives the molasses for spirit.

Now, if in Jamaica the cane has more "Sacarina" than here and in spite of this produces more spirit, it is the result of old machinery used, and if on the contrary the cane gives more molasses, it proves that our soil up here is richer and more fit for sugar planting.

I remain gentlemen,
Yours truly,
Subscriber.

WOOL.

VII.

How rats were the cause of my acquaintance with an old produce dealer.—Bermeje water, or 'mundus vult decipi.'—A shocking anachronism.

Never in the world have there existed more rats than in Las Palmas in 1868, when enormous quantities of maize and hay were stored on the banks of the Paraguay river. Between rats and mosquitoes at night and heat during the day, one could sing with Valentin in the amateur theatricals: "The soldier's life is not a happy lot":

The mighty hard wood and cedar trees, interspersed with lagunas surrounded by palms, in the Gran Chaco, on the opposite side of the river, and the sight of the although near yet inaccessible "Lomas Valentinas" on which the Paraguayan outposts could be seen, made the low, swampy and tree-less surroundings of Las Palmas appear still more disagreeable, for, instead of the fresh smell of green trees and creepers, you had the alcoholic evaporation of damp, fermenting maize devoured with the scent of dead horses, mules, rats, &c., besides the variety of odours which are inevitable amidst an army of 33,000 men (mostly consisting of Brazilian niggers) a great number of whom were sick of cholera morbus.

On a hot December day, when the thermometer showed 30 centigrades in the shade, I was walking between the tents of the Brazilian and Correntino cavalry vanguard, pretty much done up by the heat, since tents give no shade on account of their triangular form, when I saw a notice put up in front of the biggest one, which looked like a canteen, saying: 'Biere,' and as I thought this was the Brazilian or Guarani translation of the English beer, which is derived from the German "Bier." Nothing could be more welcome to me under the circumstances. I went in and asked for a "chopp." Roars of laughter from all the inhabitants of the tent was the answer, and the owner explained to me that he had only on sale a specific for killing rats, consisting of glycerine and quassia wood. "If I had been on sale he said, I should have used the Spanish word 'cerveza,' since their does not exist any word for beer in the Guarani language, and in this camp everybody understands Spanish."

Well, "said I," do not the horses die, when you mix up this stuff with the maize?' "No," he said, "it is not quite strong enough to kill a horse, but it will do men and rats, according to the quantity they drink of it." Then I asked for a glass of Bermejo water, which I got and found splendid; "the Bermejo" I said "should be called the silver river, instead of the muddy Plate." "Mundus vult decipi," he answered. "You think you got Bermejo water, it was not, but you liked it just as well; look here, he said, this is just like the 'abomié' of L'Union when the barraquero made him believe, he lost $10 per arrobe; while he believed he had made a favourable purchase.

After this, the man became thoughtful and commenced to cast his eyes on the floor. After a while, he said, visibly perplexed: "Excuse Sir, my having been guilty of such an anachronism, I was speaking about things that will only take place in 1882." "No matter," said I, and remembering that I had seen on the Tesoreary a banker, who —knowing that in war and love everything is allowed—had dropped the n and was making a fortune by the bread he sold, I asked the owner of the tent whether he had been dealing with produce before. "Oh yes," he said, "for long years, and I know all about the trade of Montevideo and Buenos Aires." "In the former place," he said, "they were still rather innocent at my time, and they swallowed large quantities of yellow coloured wool, which I sent in bags from Rosario and Tuyú, as if it was wool from Dolores or the Rio Negro." "In Buenos Aires they are pretty sharp," he continued, "principally the barraqueros; nevertheless, I managed sometimes to slip by the river Tibecuy and the 'nueve vueltas,' wool from Gualeguay to San Pedro and San Nicolas, mixing it up there with Buenos Aireas wool, and this mixture was eagerly bought by the artistas in Barracas under the name of Gualeguaychú." These two classes of wool he said, can only be distinguished by the smell, and since many of the buyers are smoking when they look at the wool, it is very easy to cheat them. Meanwhile, it had become late, and as the reveille was given every morning at 4 o'clock, I preferred to look for my bed, which consisted of the softest plank I could find on the deck of a pontoon, because it was too hot to sleep in the tent.

Anxious to learn something more about wool, which would be of interest to your readers, I invited my host to return my visit. "If you will give me a call," I told him "please to ask for the tent of the

EDITOR'S TABLE

The "Happy-New-Yearing" infliction was less vehement yesterday, to the great relief of most people. So far, the year has been hot and anything but happy for those who suffer when the thermometer is high.

There was n't over much news going yesterday. At the New Year's Day reception held by the Emperor of Brazil, His Majesty was specially attentive to the Argentine Minister and expressed himself in the most friendly terms towards this country. Meanwhile, at President Santos's reception, the Brazilian Minister, Sr Alencar, was conspicuous by his absence, and Santos just as attentive to the Argentine Minister as Dom Pedro in Rio, assuring him that the rumoured alliance between Banda Orfental and Brazil is bosh of the too utterly utter stamp.

The news about Colonel Ortega's division having been surprised and cut up by the Indians in the Cordillera is officially denied. We give some late news from Gen. Villegas's division in another column.

President Roca is a true democrat. H.E. arrived yesterday from his tour in the Interior, but, at his special request, no fuss was made on the occasion. The President reached the Central Station at 2 o'clock, and walked at once to the Government House, where he remained for a short time and then walked home. We respectfully salute the Chief Magistrate on his return.

The Law Courts will reopen on Saturday.

We are glad to hear that Dr Victorica, Minister of War, is rapidly recovering from his recent severe attack of illness.

The returns of the British Hospital for December were issued yesterday. They show 35 patients in the House on 1st, 36 admitted, 42 discharged, 3 died, and 26 to begin the New Year with.

The French residents here and in Montevideo are preparing for a grander even greater funeral honors to their troops than the Italians. [illegible] camp, cattle, b[illegible] contract to wire-in can[illegible] The French the necessary materials etc.

At the kind invitation of Mr Adolfo Negrotto, we visited his splendid collegiate establishment at Caballito on Sunday last. The perfection of all the arrangements rather surprised us, as we had no idea that there was such a school in the country. In respect to hygiene, it stands unrivalled. There is a whole 'manzana' of ground under flower gardens, vines, all other kinds of fruit, alfalfa &c. There is a magnificent swimming bath in the open air for summer, and a large bath room for winter; a bakery where the bread for the school and that in Calle Cangallo is made; a carpenter's shop; an immense enclosure where hundreds of fowls are reared for the scholars' table, in fact everything that can conduce to the health and comfort of the pupils is to be found in the establishment. There is a large special dormitory, splendidly ventilated and arranged for the younger boys, who are under the special care of Mrs Negrotto, a most amiable lady who has had many years experience in teaching and training young children. We have never seen a finer school.

There are 70,000 dead letters and newspapers in the General Post Office the relics of 1882. Last year there were only 50,000. "Pike's Peak's" friend. Waiting for a Remittance Esqre. should call at the G.P.O. and look through the 70,000 'muertos.' There may be something amongst them that would put new life into him.

We cordially salute the Republica on its 17th anniversary, and wish it many happy returns of the day.

Dr Llambi Campbell, the talented President of the Hypothecary Bank, will leave for Europe on the 24th.

Splendid blood horses will be going off under the hammer on the 11th, when Mr Anderson's stud will be offered to the public. "Ojo!" turfites.

General Villegas telegraphs from Paso Indio that his expedition will be the finale of the Indians in the South of this country. He ought to know, and we believe he is right.

We have received a significant letter from a Lujan farmer, who admits that Sheep must give way to Wheat on the inside camps. He says the Italian agriculturist is driving the sheepfarmer from the field. We hold the letter for our next issue.

The notes of preparation for Carnival are already sounding, and the clink of hammers closing 'pomitos' up is the noise of the passing hour. There is the usual talk about a new route for the Corso, but we venture to say the old one will be stuck to.

We read an extraordinary bit of news in a colleague, viz., that the Richuelo is now as sweet-smelling as a child's breath. This is news indeed, but we fear it is what our Argentine colleagues call 'premature.'

Two families living in Calle Juncal were very nearly qualified for permanent residence in the Recoleta by eating a beautifully-sugared cake on New Year's Day. A 'confitero' sent the cake a present to one of the families, and half of it was sent to their friends. Both families eat the cake after dinner, and before tea-time they were all bawling in agony. Fortunately, the doctor came in time, and all were saved—one old gentleman by having a few dozen leeches applied to his 'estomago,' a rather novel remedy for poisoning.

We omitted yesterday to return Mr. Baccani, the courteous Manager of the Havas Agency, our best thanks for his kind New Year's Card.

Mr Hunter Davidson C.E., has finished his survey of the port of Bahia Blanca and will be here in a day or two. His report on the future 'Liverpool of the Southern Hemisphere' is anxiously looked for.

The Porvenir of Cañuelas announces that it intends to die next month, but it gives a parting kick in favour of Wheat versus Sheep in that fine partido.

We salute our colleague El Plata, on its anniversary, and wish it many years of prosperous life.

The first elections under the new Municipal Law will take place on April 15th.

The papers report a terrific hubbub in Arrecifes between the Justice of Peace and the Head Constable, or Comisario, of Police. The Justice won in a canter, aided by a formidable Bull-dog revolver, which he flourished, but did not fire, so nobody was hurt.

The new organ for the American Methodist Church has arrived in the Hanoverian. It was built in London.

We hear that Mr Tate, the talented Secretary of the Pantelephone Company, has invented a curious inkstand called "the Pantelophone." We want to know all about it, so please send us full particulars Mr T.

The gold market rules very quiet, and ... operations are reported. Meantime, the ... mand for paper money is becoming daily more pressing, and many, in view of the new one launched on the market and the general unwillingness to accept same, think that paper money will soon be at a premium unless the banks discount liberally. The Mortgage Bank paid its coupons to-day in paper and silver, and brokers were calling attention to the fact. The National coin is being gradually paid out and is daily seen with more frequency.

Speculation in Cedulas is in the ascendant, and operations are becoming daily more active. The Cedula is supplanting the National Bank Share, and the late activity in the stock has been a remarkable contrast to the dullness of affairs in shares. Series A maintains its premium for cash, but sales were effected on the end of the month at 103½ and 1... There is great stir in the new partido ... Mellizas, some 20 leagues from the 9 ... Julio; cattle and sheep are being daily driven to the new district. Four square leagues of land have been set apart for the formation of a town.

300 squares of land in Las Negras partido of Nueve de Julio have been sold by Mr. Douthat at the rate of $500 per square.

The earthworks of the Audine Railway Section between Mendoza and San Juan began yesterday. The works will be completed in six months.

The Provincial Bank discounted to-day seven millions currency.

There is a wide-spread rumour in the market that Dr. P. Llambi Campbell, the talented President of the Mortgage Bank, will leave for Europe in the middle of the month, with a scheme of the Provincial Government to munch $16,000,000 at 5 o/o, in order to redeem all the 8 o/o paying Cedulas. This means the extinction of Series A, B, C and D.

Some exchange reported done to-day at 5.29 fcs—about 200,000 francs. In sterling nothing.

The arrivals in the Once this morning amounted to 7,000 arrobes. Large sales were effected in the deposits in consequence of the few arrivals. Messrs Duggan sold yesterday about 12,000 arrobes to Belgian and French buyers.

We call attention to Messrs Moore & Tudor's notice in another column.

About 18,000 new National Bank shares have been applied for up to the present; of this amount over 12,000 have been subscribed.

During afternoon 1,500 Nat. Bank shares were sold for the end of the month at 104; also several thousand Series E at 84¾ for to-morrow, and 85 for the end of the month.

Brokers complained to-day of the refusal of the Banks to take silver coin. Many who had received silver in payment of coupons at the Mortgage Bank went to the nearest bank in order to get rid of the heavy weight of silver in their pockets, but to their astonishment neither the Provincial nor the private banks would receive same. With regard to the new silver coins it is well to know that they are coined on the standard adopted by France, Italy and Belgium.

Discounts continue difficult in the market.

The returns of the Riachuelo harbor are visibly increasing, as can be seen by the following figures for the last three years:—

1880	$ 77,166
1881	102,650
1882	122,644

With regard to tonnage and number of vessels the figures stand as follows:

	Vessels.	Tonnage.
1879	21,576	577,964
1880	23,642	644,574
1881	32,886	827,072
1882	42,890	995,597

The figures shew the steady advance of the Boca.

The following clearances are reported in Montevideo:—

Austrian barque Errante for New York with 32,559 dry hides
20 bales hair
25,111 kilos animal manure.

Danish patacho Thea for West Indies with 77 mules.

Dutch patacho Sacra-Jarine for Rio Grande with 1,546 bultos railway materials.

Italian barque Laura for Genoa with—
257,000 kilos old iron
12,563 kilos old copper
570 dry hides
6 bales wool
96 bales sheepskins

The sales at afterhours were:—

Some very fine wools were sold to-day in the South Plaza as high as $100 ⅝ per @. The demand for good wools in the market is constant and is becoming more marked as these qualities are gradually becoming scarce.

The maize market continues firm. Few sales are effected and holders of the grain refuse to sell at current rates.

From the Plaza Once de Setiembre we have the following:—

280 waggons of produce arrived.

The sales were:—

The Agents beg to call attention to the advantages offered by this Company to secure, by a small annual payment, a provision for the family of the insured, or for the guarantee of advances which the debtor cannot at once refund.

The security which the Company offers is unequalled by any other Life Insurance Company.

Three fourths of the total profits of the Life Department are distributed every five years amongst the insured, and at the last division £238,213 was in this manner returned to the holders of the Policies, who were entitled to participate, equivalent to one and a half per cent per annum on the amount of their Policies.

DE LA MANANA

Despues de un se ri ento almuerzo campestre que ofrecen los dueños a la concurrencia procederemos a la liquidacion por separado entre los Sores Sres. Salaberry, Mandia y Errecaborde y retirarse este ultimo señor para Europa, de todas las existencias del primer establecimiento de esta magnitud en la Republica ¿ acido por Los Remedios en el partido Lo as de Zamora, campo de los Sres Gonzalez Moreno.

No entraremos a dar un minucioso detalle de existencias por su mucha estension y solo lo haremos en globo y de la manera siguiente:

VACUNO

3000 cabezas raza Durham, desde media sangre hasta puras, todas ellas lecheras selectas e hijas de estas.

El establecimiento se ha esmerado siempre en obtener hacienda grande en tamaño, buen cuero y sin exageracion superiores como lecheras pues no hay ninguna vaca que de menos de doce cuartas y en su mayor parte 18 y 20 cuartas de leche.

TOROS—Raza Durham puros y mestizos de un año arriba hasta dos.

TOROS ALDERNEY—Puros y muchos lecheras selectas. servidas por animales de esta raza especial para leche

Especial para Tamberos

Se las recomienda los tambos, compuestos de 20 hasta 50 animales cada tambo de un pelo y los hay; blancos, ovejeros, rosados, colorados negros, castaños, overos y otros pelos.

LANAR

6 a 7000 ovejas mestizas y mestizas Lincoln, carneros padres Lincoln, procedentes del Establecimiento Martin Garcia, en el partido de Balcarce.

PORCINO

Cerdos de raza Normonda puros como tambien mestizados con raza Berkshire consiguiendo con esta cruza tamaño y gordura.

ENSERES

Carros y caballos de tiro, carros con su bovada correspondiente en su mayor parte colorada, lienzos de corral de 16 pies cada uno en muy buen estado, ñandubay ½ postes, estaciones y otras maderas elegidas y en fin una variedad de enseres de un Establecimiento como este que seria largo detallar.

Arrendamiento del Campo

Se rematara el contrato de arrendamiento a 2100 cuadras mas o menos, bajo alambrado de primer orden, magnificas aguadas, campo flor, poblaciones, etc, por el termino de 4 años 9 meses, con sujecion al contrato original con los propietarios del campo y cuyo contrato puede inspeccionarse en nuestra casa, Calle Alsina 78.

Creemos inutil hablar sobre la bondad de estos campos que no tienen rival en la Provincia y lo demuestran los arrendamientos que pagan alli en pequeñas fracciones.

Debemos llamar la atencion especial de los Sres hacendadas y criadores sobre el Stock de este Establecimiento, pues dificilmente hallaran mejor ocasion para hacerse de animales mestizos, cuya formacion ha costado mucho dinero, sacrificios y contraccion incesante a sus actuales propietarios.

La venta de las haciendas se hara en lotes al alcance de todos los capitales.

Los que se interesen en el arrendamiento del campo, pueden ocurrir a nuestra casa Alsina 78 por planos y datos.
